BREAK-IN BUST

Woman chased by burglars as she snaps them leaving scene

by ROSS LOGAN
ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

An amateur sleuth was chased by burglars after she photographed them breaking into a neighbour's home.

The woman heard noises coming from the house in Bodley Road, New Malden, and saw the door had been broken open.

In a move described as "chilling" by the judge in the sentencing of the three men, they drove after her car after realising they had been snapped emerging from a shed.

Dean Jackson, 26, Daniel O'Brien, 28, and John Ballingall, 29, were jailed today at Kingston Crown Court for stealing £50,000 worth of jewellery, cash and other goods on May 23.

Prosecutor Paul Andrews told the court the woman called the police, then sat in her car and took photos of the men as they emerged from a shed and walked towards a silver Ford Focus parked in the road.

Suspecting she had been spotted, she began to drive away – and was followed by the burglars.

Mr Andrews said: "She was followed by this car. They clearly noticed what she was doing."

But the burglars fled when police arrived and started to chase them.

They ditched their car and fled on foot in separate directions.

Ballingall was arrested in Burlington Road, Jackson was caught in Queen's Road and O'Brien in Oakfield Close.

Sentencing the gang, Judge Mitchell said: "I'm quite satisfied this was a team effort. You came over to this area to burgle.

"I am satisfied you were a team and that is an aggravating factor in these offences.

"I think you are hardened professionals in the business of burglary."

Judge Fergus Mitchell said: "I am satisfied you knew quite well what was happening and I believe you did follow the car.

"That isn't going to increase the sentence but it is quite chilling really."

Jackson, from Hayes, was sentenced to 23 months in prison.

Ballingall, also from Hayes, was jailed for 28 months, while O'Brien was sentenced to 30 months, including two months for breaching a community order for a previous offence.

All three have previous convictions for burglary or attempted burglary.

An estimated £24,685 worth of jewellery stolen in the raid has never been recovered.

Call to investigate paedophile's activities at Kingston Council

by ROSS LOGAN
ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Conservative leader Howard Jones has called for an independent review into jailed paedophile Derek Osbourne's leadership of Kingston Council.

The Tory councillor has written an open letter to Kingston Council chief executive Bruce McDonald and leader Liz Green asking for a full investigation into Osbourne's 10 years at the top of the ruling Liberal Democrat party.

Osbourne, 59, was jailed for two years last week for downloading and distributing indecent images of children, animals and women being violently or sexually abused, under the online pseudonym Dave Strider.

In his letter, Coun Jones said: "The foundations of public confidence are built on open and frank disclosure of facts. We cannot move forward without first drawing a line on the past.

"Consequently, I am requesting that the chief executive of Kingston Council and the current Liberal Democrat leader Liz Green to commission an independent investigation into the 'Derek Osbourne' era of council leadership.

"This investigation should have cross-party involvement and findings should be made available to the public."

Coun Jones said the review should examine aspects of Osbourne's tenure not covered by the police's own investigation – which found no evidence of his illegal activities during his council work.

It should look at Osbourne's influence over children's services in the wake of the damaging Ofsted inspections and to what extent he was involved in children's activities, Coun Jones said.

He also demanded to know whether Osbourne, a keen amateur actor, had steered public funds towards "pet projects" such as the Rose Theatre and performing arts sectors.

Coun Jones added: "The damage caused by these events and Derek Osbourne's admission of guilt needs to be scrutinised and any wrongdoing publicly purged."

But Coun Green has previously dismissed the need for an investigation.

She said: "The leader has no individual decision-making powers. All decisions that have been made are decisions made by committee.

"This has been going on for the best part of six months and we've been getting on with the job of serving residents of the borough.

"The council has moved on – Derek is no longer connected to the council, and has not been since his arrest."

Accident hotspot: Tolworth Broadway

Victim warns of danger zone

A woman injured in a car crash on Tolworth Broadway has spoken about her ordeal, and warned of further accidents due to the Greenway development.

Joann White, 40, suffered severe whiplash after the crash last Tuesday, which saw her car written off.

She told the Kingston Guardian: "I had picked a friend up and we were just going out for a while. We were going to have coffee.

"Two girls just walked straight out from behind the van. They are really lucky. They walked out, I braked, and the person behind me hit me."

She added: "The lady who works in the charity shop next to the garage came out and helped me.

by JON SHARMAN
jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

"I was going to pass out. I can't remember anything for about half an hour. She came out and put a pillow under my head.

"I would like to say a big thank you to her, because she really did help me that day."

Mrs White, who lives in Banstead and uses the Broadway regularly, criticised the Greenway revamp, saying the changes have made the road dangerous.

She said: "Everyone just walks out in front of you down there now. No one knows where to cross the road.

"I don't know whether they think that the green lines are a zebra crossing.

"It has got so bad down there since they put that stuff in.

"There's going to be so many accidents. It is just so dangerous.

"I had to drive back down there this week after the accident and I didn't really want to.

"I was really scared. I'm on red alert when I'm going down there now."

The back of Mrs White's Motability car, a black Citroen hatchback, was mangled in the crash with a red Range Rover.

Her daughter, who is disabled, normally rides in the back seat.

Mrs White said: "The thought of her being in the back with that car hitting, I think she definitely would have been killed, because she's really fragile. It's really scared me."

Expect delays, council admits

• Delays in putting the finishing touches to Tolworth's Greenway could mean work will run over in to next week.

Kingston Council apologised for the inconvenience caused to drivers and shopkeepers by the latest delay, and said the laying of the last few green stripes could only take place during "reasonably prolonged spells" of dry weather.

Children at risk as road lacks lollipop lady

A busy crossing at the top of Tolworth's new Greenway has been missing a lollipop lady for seven weeks, parents have said.

Parents of children at Our Lady Immaculate School (OLI) also called the crossing "treacherous" and said pedestrians were at risk due to the phasing of traffic lights.

Sally Fairman, of Stokesby Road, Chessington, said: "Tolworth Broadway is busy and treacherous for school children and is currently an accident waiting to happen.

"We have been without a crossing patrol for seven weeks now.

"Given the amount of disruption and ever changing layouts, something needs to be done before there is a terrible accident."

Sandi Avery, also from Chessington, has two children at the school.

She said the present light sequence means indication is given to cross at the petrol station, while southbound traffic continues to move through the junction.

She said: "It's not right at all. Adults crossing will know, but when you have got children they're thinking, 'We're allowed to cross, there's a green man.'

Anger: Parents and children at the crossing in Tolworth Broadway
Deadlinepix KT80371

"It's a busy junction at all times."

Of the lack of a lollipop lady, she said: "That should be sorted as soon as possible. I don't know how long it's going to take for them to get one."

Frankie Moore, of Surbiton, said her son attended OLI some years ago. She added: "Following the death of a child outside Tiffin school, around that time, we need to be sure that another tragedy is prevented.

"The current phasing of the lights is putting pedestrians at risk. This problem needs to be addressed before another child is harmed or killed."

South of the borough neighbourhood chairman Councillor Rachel Reid said last week the lack of a crossing patrol was a concern.

Kingston Council is yet to confirm the replacement of the previous crossing warden, who retired before the school summer holidays.

It is also looking to recruit wardens for Maple Road in Surbiton and Burlington Road in New Malden. Both positions have been vacant for a month.

Raid is just a dry run

by ROSS LOGAN
ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Police made an unexpected visit to Kingston's iconic Raven's Ait island foran unannounced licensing inspection – during a dry Muslim wedding.

Officers from the Metropolitan Police's marine unit travelled all the way from Wapping to pick up officers from Kingston licensing team for the surprise trip, after receiving an application to review the island's licence.

But officers found little except a Muslim wedding in full swing, and left shortly afterwards.

Ossie Stewart, who sold Raven's Ait to Middle East businessman Marshall Gasper in a seven-figure deal last month, but still works for the island as a consultant, said: "It was an unannounced licensing inspection.

"That was how it was explained to me.

"The stupid thing is, they used the police boat, and four police officers spent the whole day down in Surbiton from Wapping.

"If they wanted to come on to the island they just needed to ask and we would bring them over. Why they spent that much police time on it I don't know.

"They looked a bit silly."

A police spokesman said: "On Friday, October 18, at approximately 3.20pm Kingston police licensing team carried out a licensing visit at Raven's Ait. The visit was a result of the police being served a copy of an application to review the licence. There were no offences and no arrests.

"Marine support unit was requested to transport officers on to the island."

Raven's Ait is the subject of a review following a complaint by neighbour Philip Doyle, of Portsmouth Road.

Mr Doyle, a prospective Conservative candidate for Grove ward in next year's local elections, claimed a rising level of noise emitting from the island was becoming a nuisance.

In his submission to Kingston Council, Mr Doyle, said: "In recent months the volume of noise escaping from the island when a function is taking place has become very noticeable, and is so loud as to be clearly audible in my home.

"I know from contact with neighbours they experience similar noise nuisance from Raven's Ait."

Mr Stewart's company Stewart Marine Raven's Ait was sold to Marshal Gaspar, a United Arab Emirates-based businessman, in a seven-figure deal earlier this year after a "very generous offer".

Mr Gaspar wants to build a small hotel on the island, Mr Stewart has said.

The police marine unit last raided the island in an early morning swoop in May 2009 to evict squatters who had sailed on to the island andrefused to leave.

Jamie mum sceptical of revamp

The mother of murdered Jamie Sanderson has dismissed safety measures introduced at the Oceana nightclub since her son's death as "a business just trying to stay open".

Carol Sanderson spoke to the Kingston Guardian last week, one year on from the night when her youngest child was stabbed to death in a corridor inside the Clarence Street venue.

Mrs Sanderson marked the anniversary with a memorial service in Southall, where the family lives, followed by an anti-knife march through the town.

On the same day in Kingston, Stephen Greenhalgh, deputy mayor of London for policing and crime, visited Oceana and declared the venue to be "much safer than a year ago".

Killed: Jamie Sanderson

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

But Mrs Sanderson, who has two other children, said: "They're just following procedure. They have to do that by law.

"They're a business. And they want to stay open."

Mrs Sanderson attended the murder trial in July that ended with Levan Greenfield and Brandon Francis both being given life sentences for killing her son.

She and her daughter saw dozens of CCTV images showing the moments immediately before and after the attack.

She said this week: "When you look at the CCTV, that's a very dangerous corridor, and there was no security anywhere. I find that disgusting."

Mrs Sanderson has never visited Oceana, but said she would like to go to the venue one day.

She said: "I've seen all the police pictures. I know what it looks like, but I haven't gone back yet. I would probably go back in time. I would like to go there and face them, but everything takes time."

Asked how the family had coped in the year since the tragedy, she said: "We're doing the best we can. It's been a very difficult 12 months."

Millionaire's 'body found under bed'

One of the men accused of murdering a millionaire oil executive and amateur call girl has claimed he found her decomposing body under her bed.

Carole Waugh, 49, disappeared in April last year and her body was found in the boot of a VW Golf at a lock-up garage in Lime Court, New Malden, on August 2, 2012.

Rakesh Bhayani, 41, and Nicholas Kutner, 48, deny killing Miss Waugh in order to gamble away her life savings and are currently standing trial at the Old Bailey.

So far the court has heard how Miss Waugh was a wealthy but lonely amateur escort, who advertised herself on adult dating websites as "posh totty fun".

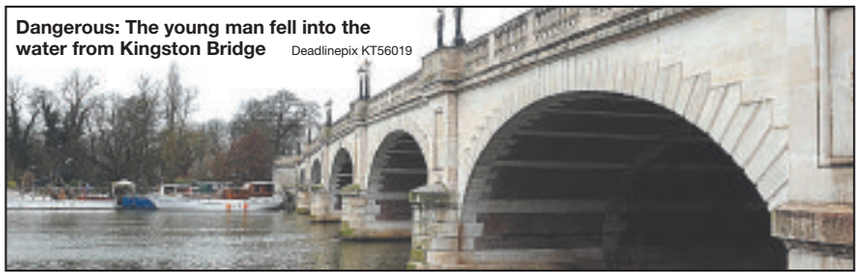

She lived alone in a £600,000 flat in Marylebone.

Prosecutors claim she was targeted by the defendants, both described as professional con men, who planned to kill her, steal her identity and drain her bank accounts.

This week, the court heard Mr Bhayani, from Wembley, told police he had used Miss Waugh as a call girl. He claimed he found her dead body under her bed.

Both Mr Bhayani and Mr Kutner have admitted conspiracy to defraud but deny murder.

The trial continues.

Mob 'chased' reveller off bridge into Thames

by DAVID LINDSELL
dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

A narrowboat owner has described rescuing a reveller from drowning after he fell from Kingston Bridge into the Thames.

The man, said to be in his early 20s, screamed "Help me!" before he was pulled from the river at about 1.30am on Sunday, October 27.

His rescuer said he either jumped to escape a fight with clubbers dressed in Halloween face paint or was thrown.

Paul Peck, 44, who moors his boat outside Bar Essence, said: "There was a bit of an altercation outside Bar Essence. I heard screams of 'Help me!'.

"There was a man floating in the middle of the river."

Mr Peck said the young man was waving his arms in and out as if he was drowning.

He said: "I paddled out to rescue him and pulled him on to the boat.

"He had blood coming out of his mouth. He was two or three minutes from drowning.

"He would have definitely been a goner if I hadn't helped."

The young man's name was Daniel or Dan, Mr Peck said.

He said: "When I pulled him out he told me 'I don't know what happened. I got whacked and the next thing I got thrown off the bridge'.

"He had obviously been drinking. The story I heard was he was being pursued and decided to chuck himself off the bridge to get away from them. A few of the guys had Halloween painted faces.

"I'm a bit concerned about the safety of these guys. They are young men but they are also someone's children."

A spokesman for London Ambulance said: "We were called just before 1.30am on October 27 to reports of someone in the river."

They sent a medic in a car, an ambulance and a hazardous area response team and took a man in his 20s to hospital.

A Kingston police spokesman said: "We were called to Kingston Bridge at 1.35am on October 27 to reports that a man was in the river. Police are currently investigating the circumstances."

The Canbury Arms pub came away with business of the year at the Kingston Business Excellence Awards.

Eleven companies took home trophies from the night, which was hosted by BBC World presenter Adam Parsons and organised by Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Kingston Council and Kingstonfirst at the Holiday Inn, Kingston South, on Thursday, October 24.

Landlord Michael Pearson said: "We were quite taken aback by winning. It was great for the team. They were there on the night and over the moon."

Other winners included the charity Momentum, for commitment to the community, and Kingston Community Furniture for best green business. The best independent retailer was Seriously Sofas.

A former youth offending office in Kingston town centre could be turned into a tattoo parlour.

Tattooist Christopher Perchard, a former Kingston graduate who lives in New Malden, has applied to turn Eagle Chambers, in Eden Street, from offices into a tattoo and body piercing studio.

In his application he wrote: "Tattooing is now a high street industry and Eagle Chambers would provide opulent private studios offering tattooing, body piercing and laser removal of the highest standard and appearance."

He opened his first tattoo shop in Croydon three years ago and said he hoped to offer six jobs, promising to keep the appearance of the former law buildings except for an "elegant, traditional sign".

Eagle Chambers, which dates back to 1879, is owned by Kingston Council and was used for youth services, including teenage pregnancy advice, substance misuse services, and youth offending.

The property has been advertised to let for £20,000 a year.

In focus: Camera club puts on exhibition in 120th year

by JON SHARMAN

"Selfies", pictures of cats, and heavily-filtered photos of breakfast might make up the bulk of photos taken these days, but for one man photography remains a passion.

Keith Wellbelove has been a member of the Kingston Camera Club for more than 40 years, and always keeps an eye open for striking images.

The camera club, of which Mr Wellbelove was for many years secretary, was founded in 1883 as the Kingston Photographic Society and will celebrate its 120th anniversary this month.

It will hold its annual exhibition at Kingston Museum in Wheatfield Way, from November 8 to 23.

Mr Wellbelove first became involved with the club in the mid-1960s.

He said: "Somebody I met at work just talked about photography and I decided to buy a camera, and I was hooked. Once I wanted to take pictures I enrolled on a short evening course.

"One of the chaps that was running it was a member – he suggested I come down."

When he learned to take his first images, Mr Wellbelove had access to a darkroom and printing chemicals.

Not so these days.

He said: "It's just totally impractical.

"I have made the transition to digital. For many years I was able to do my own printing.

"All you need is a computer you can sit at with a cup of coffee and you haven't got to have a darkroom space, and all the problems that come with it.

"I like street photography mainly, but also shapes and structures.

"Unusual shapes, so if there was an arch I would pick a part of it.

"I go out whenever I can. It is mainly a solitary activity. I suppose it gives you the freedom to do what you want and go where you want.

"You can stand in front of something for half an hour and you don't need to worry that other people might want to move on."

And has he passed down his hobby to his family? "Funnily enough, no – try as I might. I'm the one and only.

"It's hard to put into words, really. I'm just looking for pictures all the time. I've got this enthusiasm for taking pictures. I'm still as keen as I ever was."

WINTER WARNINGS!

Invitations for free health checks may be viewed as a cynical guise to entice your car into the workshop and onto the ramp where, lo and behold, urgently-required work is identified. But in all seriousness, put your suspicions to one side and at the very least, have your vehicle checked as we hurtle towards the depths of winter.

If you haven't had your vehicle serviced recently and particularly if the last service took place around a year or more ago, you really should consider a service for both safety and to ensure your car is running at its optimum.

Here's our top five of items likely to cause problems in cold snaps:-

Coolant – Ensuring your levels and coolant concentration is correct is vital to your car's performance in the winter to avoid nasty surprises such as frozen pipes.

Batteries – According to the AA, battery faults are the most common cause of breakdown with the cold weather exacerbating the problem

Clutch cables – Constant stress and tension wears away wires over time.

Spark plugs – These are replaced according to the manufacturer recommended service intervals as part of a routine service.

HT-Leads – High tension leads and their connections can wear away with age.

These are among the many items checked and some items are automatically replaced as part of a routine service.

IT'S A SELLOUT

It's smiles all round at GO Service Centres' new flagship premises on Ruxley Lane as their opening week proves to be a huge success. Jamie Bailey, Managing Director of the group says that the response to the opening on 14th October has been "phenominal".

Jamie told us "we were confident that the residents of Epsom & Ewell and the surrounding areas would love us and the fact that we have been fully booked since opening our doors is testament to the fantastic service GO provides. Outstanding value and the convenience of being able to wait in comfort at our Coffee Bar is obviously a hit with our new customers!"

WINTER TYRES – WHO NEEDS THEM?

The simple answer is: you probably don't but as the nights draw in and temperatures drop, now is the time to check your tyres are safe.

The advice is to fit winter tyres as soon as the temperature drops to 7oc for additional grip particularly in wet weather although current temperatures in the south east are currently around 10oc.

Today's tyres are made to a high specification which means most drivers do not need to consider swapping to winter tyres but a quick check to ensure your tyres are properly inflated and are not worn is recommended.

If you fall into any of the categories below, however, the advice would be to consider winter tyres:-

• If most of your driving is undertaken during the coldest part of the day and you regularly drive in sub 7oc temperatures, particularly night and shift workers.

• If you drive in Europe where winter tyres are compulsory in some countries or even if you just plan one trip over Christmas or New Year, it may be wiser to fit winter tyres.

• If a large proportion of your working life is spent on the road, particularly if you drive as far afield as Scotland, where severe weather is common.

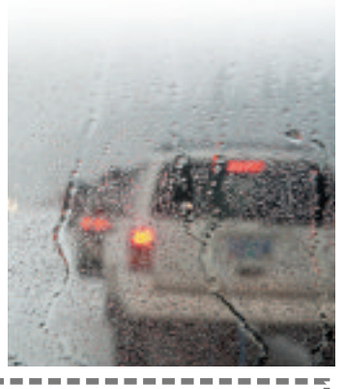

RAIN, RAIN, GO AWAY

Following the severe lashing from storms which struck the south east less than two weeks ago and further heavy rainfall predicted, it is little wonder we consider ourselves accustomed to driving in such conditions when, in fact, they can be hazardous.

Rain reduces visibility with sheet rain being particularly treacherous. The general advice is to avoid travelling or find a safe place to wait out the storm if the weather is extremely bad. Dip your headlights, turn the temperature to hot and use in conjunction with the air conditioning for fast demisting and, of course, slow down, are among the tips for driving in wet conditions.

Motorists, however, can further improve their visibility and reduce the severity of iced over windscreens with a simple procedure. GO Service Centres has imported a highly effective windscreen protector from America and is among just a few and is possibly the only garage offering the product in the UK.

Applied in minutes by GO Service Centres' professional technicians, the treatment is a long-lasting rain repellent. This innovative technology improves vision in wet weather by causing rain to bead up and roll off and unlike cheaper alternatives does not leave a silicone field. By providing a protective layer, it is also easier to de-ice in sub-zero temperatures. In addition, the glare from rain is reduced and the application will usually last several months.

Claiming £2.6m benefits

by JON SHARMAN
jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston Council is spending £2.6m on benefits for 100 families.

Figures released by Kingston Council showed 102 households were claiming the maximum £500 a week in October, equal to about £26,000 a year.

Kingston households made up about 1.3 per cent of those claiming the full amount in benefits nationwide.

Department for Work and Pensions figures revealed about 7,800 households were claiming that much in August across the country.

If a family is affected by the new benefit cap, and receives housing benefit, that payout will be reduced until its total benefits come to £500 a week.

Kingston Council leader Liz Green said: "We are working with all the people hit by the benefit changes, with the Citizens Advice Bureau, to minimise the effect on them.

"If they are a large family on benefits they are likely to be hit by the cap and the majority of that is down to the rent they will have to pay."

Council opposition leader Councillor Howard Jones said: "It is about doing as much as we can to protect those who work, and to try and persuade those who are out of work to do what they must to get a job."

Michelle Boundy, CEO of credit union SurreySave, said: "Social landlords are quite worried about the rent arrears that are to arise from the reductions in benefits.

"People are coming to us for loans for basic needs. They come to get loans for gas bills."

ELVIS ATTACK: Two men on bail over an incident in which a man's throat was slashed have been bailed for another month. Gino Taffurelli suffered the injury before an Elvis Presley tribute night at the Chessington Oak pub in Moor Lane in September. The men are a 48-year-old, of no fixed address, and a 49-year-old, from Wandsworth. Stephen Martin Sherwood, 50, has already been charged with slashing Mr Taffurelli's neck with a knife.

FILTER BEDS: The company behind the proposal to develop Surbiton's filter beds has been given a date for a public inquiry into the application.

Kingston Council refused planning permission for 64 floating homes, plus a marina, restaurant and more, at the Portsmouth Road site.

But Hydro Properties has appealed the decision and an inquiry has been scheduled.

The five-day investigation will start at County Hall on Monday, November 25.

A really supportive community

Seaford College was founded in the seaside town of Seaford in 1884. In 1941, when the threat of invasion was high, the school was evacuated to Worthing.

In 1946, rather than return to the coast, the Johnson family bought the current estate near Petworth and Charles Johnson became the head of the, then, proprietorial school.

He created a fully boarding school for boys that, at its height, had about 450 pupils, and before he retired in 1990 he oversaw the school's conversion to a charitable trust.

In 1996 the school went fully co-educational. The period between 1997 and 2011 has seen almost continual growth and development. The school now has over 600 pupils, including a popular prep school section, and one in three pupils is a girl.

Seaford College is governed by a board of trustees. It is a non-selective school for boys and girls from the age of seven through to 18.

Headteacher John Green said: "Although we have a high proportion of youngsters needing learning support, we do not consider ourselves to be a 'special' school; rather a mainstream school that does educational support better than all its competitors.

"We have everyone from the very brilliant, potential Oxbridge candidates, to those who find GCSEs a challenge."

Seaford College is a medium size, friendly school where relationships between pupils, their peers and also their teachers are exceptional and form the basis of a really caring and supportive community.

The school prides itself on the range of opportunities available to pupils and aims to provide a distinctive and inclusive educational experience in which individual pupils are known, have the opportunity to discover themselves, are valued for their particular contribution, and are prepared for life.

On leaving the college, each pupil will be a confident, articulate, well-rounded young person.

"Do come and visit us, you will be impressed by what you find," added Mr Green.

Social enterprise running child services can't be sold

I am bemused by the allegations made by Liberal Democrats that Richmond Conservatives want to sell off the social enterprise that jointly runs children's services in Kingston and Richmond.

The whole point of a social enterprise is that there is an "asset lock" built into the legal format that prevents the social enterprise being sold to a private company, or privatised.

In a social enterprise profits are used for the good of the community. In a private company the profits accrue to the shareholders. It is not legally possible to switch from a social enterprise to a private company.

This Liberal Democrat fracas is, therefore, a totally meaningless waste of space.

A debate about whether children's services should be removed from local democracy and the accountability of the ballot box, by creating an arm's length social enterprise format, is an entirely appropriate discussion.

The Kingston Lib Dems have not, however, opened up any opportunities for Kingston council taxpayers to have this debate. So much for communication.

I can see three possible reasons for the Kingston Liberal Democrats creating this spurious spat:

1. They simply do not understand what a social enterprise is despite their involvement in creating Achieving for Children to run children's services.

2. They want a war of words with Richmond Council to distract the Kingston electorate from their waste and incompetence in running Kingston Council.

3. Mindful of the May 2015 borough elections, they want to create a bogus problem so they can claim they have conducted a "long and hard-fought campaign" to prevent happening what was never going to come about anyway. How many times do we see the Lib Dems using that tactic?

I leave it to the Liberal Democrats to explain themselves, but I suspect we will hear nothing from them but the usual deafening silence.

Davey's rewriting of history is Orwellian

MP Edward Davey's volteface on nuclear power has been spectacular.

In 2006, he co-wrote a pamphlet on the topic, condemning energy subsidies through such things as "super-long contracts at guaranteed prices".

In 2010, he stood on his Liberal Democrat Party's manifesto, which promised to "reject a new generation of nuclear power stations; based on the evidence nuclear is a far more expensive way of reducing carbon emissions than promoting energy conservation and renewable energy."

In 2012, Mr Davey reaffirmed, "There will be no public subsidy of nuclear generation."

Last week, he agreed to underwrite the new Hinkley Point reactors by guaranteeing the French company EDF about twice the current market price for electricity for 35 years after production starts in 2023 – exactly what he had previously condemned.

No one would particularly criticise Mr Davey for changing his mind over the course of the past two years. However, his actions last week (We don't want nuclear – says Davey in 2006, October 31) call his judgement into question.

Guardian journalist Damian Carrington pointed out one of Mr Davey's press releases from 2006. This condemned "unsafe and uneconomic nuclear power".

Within an hour, this web page had been deleted from Mr Davey's personal website. However, copies of the deleted page were soon found and broadcast over the internet.

In George Orwell's novel 1984, the Ministry of Truth continually rewrites history so that the historical record always supports the current party line.

Inconvenient facts from the past are consigned to the "memory hole".

Mr Davey's attempt to emulate the Ministry of Truth would be sinister were it not so ham-fisted.

Accident on Broadway

It did not take long for the expected accident to happen.

Although I now avoid Tolworth Broadway as much as possible, when heading for the M&S car park it is necessary to use this route.

About four days before the reported accident I had just passed the petrol station when a lady dashed across the road, causing me to stop suddenly. After a few yards another lady was just about to do the same and seeing my car drew back.

This is really frightening.

Failing to understand drama

I must take issue with Sheila Griffin (Rose Theatre's new shows seem to be in poor taste, October 31).

She fails to understand the point of drama. Greek tragedy is exactly that, tragic – and will inevitably involve vengeful sex, bloody murder and what she refers to as inappropriate behaviour. After all, many of Shakespeare's plays would not be performed given her criteria. For instance, in Troilus and Cressida, Achilles slaughters Hector and then drags his bloody body around the walls of Troy.

But only philistines would argue that these plays should not be performed.

'VIOLENCE AND INJUSTICE'

A challenging exhibition of paintings exploring the feelings associated with victims of domestic violence has opened.

Kingston artist Katrin Feldhus' Middle Axis features pastels, oils and pen on paper works, as well as poems, focusing on her own experiences of violence and abuse at the hands of a former boyfriend.

German-born Feldhus, 37, says: "I had a very negative experience and all that which is quite difficult I put into the paintings and poems. The exhibition is my experimental voice. ""Some of my art, not all, directly expresses the experience of violence and injustice.

Feldhus has also been working with Kingston women's refuge Hestia, to help other domestic violence victims express their feelings through art.

She says: "Art is more than an investment or a piece of decoration and it can be used as a medium for an uncensored voice.

"Other than through art and media, victims would not be heard."

Art for the APOCALYPSE

If you were the last person on Earth, would you bother to make art?

Enter this lonely vision by visiting the workshop of an imagined designer who has done just that, collecting abandoned objects to build his own little world, freed from societal norms or constraints of time.

Visitors are encouraged to take part in the exhibition, by taking away a part of it for 24 hours and modifying or improving it.

They can then see those objects become part of the exhibition itself.

The Last Man, devised by design duo Committee, plays on expectations of design and consumerism.

DANCE CROSS-OVER

They have spent years dancing together, but it took them just a few months to realise they were soul mates, writes Alessia Nava.

After meeting Michael Burton at the Semley Ballroom in London in 1999, Martina knew he was "the one".

This month, along with Tenors UnLimited, they host a show of operatic cross-over music and dancing in Kingston to show support for the Victoria Foundation, a medical charity set up through the sale of the New Victoria Hospital.

Martina says: "I had just moved to England from Germany and was advertising for a new dance partner. He came through the door and I knew straight away he was the one I wanted to dance with.

"It was sort of a blind date. I didn't know who I was meeting.

"Then I saw Michael and recognised him from a few competitions. I was aware of who he was but never met him. I thought he had really pretty eyes."

They have been dancing together since, and became professional ballroom champions. They married in 2009.

They represented Australia from 1999 to 2004, and although they represent Germany in the professional ballroom field, they currently give lessons at the Kingston Dance Studio, in the former Gala Bingo hall in Richmond Road.

Scott Ciscon, Jem Sharples and Paul Martin, billed as The Rat Pack of Opera, have been working on this show alongside the Burtons for a year and are now ready to perform it for the first time in Kingston.

Sharples says: "We are looking forward to perform with them very much. It's going to be a great honour watching them dance to our music during the show. "This is a very new thing for us and we're very excited. We hope it's going to be a great success."

When We Dance will feature original music from the three tenors and ballroom dancing. During the interval there will be a raffle accompanied by coffee and cakes.

plain sight

Kingston Choral Society will return to a London concert hall to perform Joseph Haydn's masterpiece The Creation in English.

The choir will be back at Cadogan Hall in Chelsea on Saturday, November 16, accompanied by Thames Sinfonia and a trio of distinguished soloists.

Award-winning young soprano Sophie Bevan, tenor Robert Murray and bass David Soar will join the mixed-voice ensemble as they perform Haydn's classic oratorio. Andrew Griffiths will conduct.

The Creation is the story of the beginning of earth, inspired by the book of Genesis as well as John Milton's Paradise Lost.

Ruth Bolton, publicity secretary for Kingston Choral Society, said: "From the opening depiction of chaos to the joyous love-song of Adam and Eve, Haydn's musical invention is truly breathtaking."

MAN FOOD

The brainchild of Canadian DJ and journalist Sandy Sharkey, Men Make Dinner Day (MMDD) began as a ruse to trick her husband, but has spawned into a movement conquering North America and is now making its way across the Pond, writes Nick Hitchens.

Complete with its own tongue-in-cheek website offering a set of rules, and also a helpful interactive list of recipes, Men Make Dinner Day is firmly established in many households' calendars.

SANDY SHARKEY

● Men Make Dinner Day; November 7; visit menmakedinnerday.com

Sharkey, who lives in Ottawa, says: "My husband Rob is a great guy, and a wonderful husband, but at the time he just didn't cook.

"One day I called him and said today was Men Make Dinner Day. I had already written a rough draft of the rules and told him that I read about this somewhere. He didn't know that I created it."

Rules include: "Main meal must include minimum of four ingredients and require at least one cooking utensil other than a fork." And the harsh: "Man must use the 'clean as he goes along' rule. Following each completed use of utensils, cookware, half-used jars of anything, spice bottles, etc, everything is rinsed, cleaned and put away."

The day has not been without its problems, though, firstly for Sharkey's kitchen.

She says: "The first attempt resulted in an oven fire. He got his hands on a cookbook and chose one of the most complicated recipes in the book. Some sort of poached stuffed salmon that poured out of the pan while baking, causing the element to smoke and eventually catch fire.

"The next year wasn't much better, a 'Mexican surprise'. But the main surprise was we had to throw out the pots and pans because the bottoms were charred beyond repair."

Then there's the reaction from men who do cook.

She says: "No matter how much I try to make it as clear as possible on my website I understand that most men do cook. If you are a man who cooks regularly, great, fine, wonderful. Soon, since MMDD is coming up, I will start getting the emails from men who call me every horrible name in the book, because they cook every night. I always respond with the same comment. 'This day doesn't apply to you because, one, you cook regularly and, two, this is a day for men with a sense of humour'."

And how should a woman get her man to cook on November 7?

Sharkey says: "Promise them stuff in return."

FOUL PLAY

With party season almost upon us, a murder mystery event is an alternative option to keep revellers happy, writes Alexandra Rucki.

The Killing Game, based in Leatherhead, Surrey, is a series of murder-mystery parties hosted throughout the year, including events in the run up to Christmas and New Year's Eve.

Participants have the option to indulge in a whole weekend solving the mystery or over the course of a single evening.

The events all take place in country-style hotels across southern England, which includes the option of an overnight stay.

Guests can also choose to hold a private event in a hotel of their choice, with the Killing Game staff happy to do all the hard work of hosting it for you.

From the very start of the murder-mystery five or six actors are mixed in with the guests.

Everyone is made aware of who they are, with guests encouraged to talk to them throughout the course of the evening.

As the evening progresses fights and altercations break out between the actors, giving away more clues about motives.

Participants enjoy a three-course dinner as tension builds up, until one of the actors is mysteriously murdered.

During coffee the remaining actors are cross-examined before guests decide who they think the culprit is.

Nicholas Cross, managing director of the Killing Game, says: "Most other murder mystery events are comedies. We are slightly more serious. There are funny bits, but not all comedy.

"We get all sorts of ages – couples bringing their teenage children, people on their hen parties, 40th, 50th, 90th birthday parties. It appeals to all types of people.

"New Year's Eve evenings are always such fun. The atmosphere is just electric, everyone is cheering."

Evenings range from £33-£55 a person, while a weekend can cost up to £150 a person.

MURDER MOST HORRID: The Brook Kingston Lodge Hotel regularly host murder mystery evenings, through specialist events organiser the Killing Game.

The next evening at the Kingston Hill venue is not until Saturday, August 9, 2014, but these events fill up quickly so best book now to avoid disappointment.

London house prices to rise by 24 per cent

Market report predicts increase over next five years

Pent-up demand, Government support and improved economic conditions will lead to widespread house price growth next year and for the next five years, according to the latest market Hamptons International report.

London, the only part of the UK where prices are now above their pre-recession peak, will continue to outperform other regions. Hamptons predict house prices in England and Wales will increase by six per cent in 2014 and by 24 per cent in the next five years.

"Transactions will grow year on year for the next three years and will break the one million mark in 2016 and will grow by 50 per cent between now and 2018."

property@london.newsquest.co.uk

The report is based on national economic and house price data and provides a national view. It emphasises the importance of property transactions as a more accurate indicator of the health of the property market than price growth.

It highlights that while we have been operating in a half market – with activity at just over half of 2008 levels – transactions are on the increase and will continue to grow due to economic recovery, a return to confidence in the market and government stimuli such as Funding for Lending and Help to Buy.

Fionnuala Earley, research director at Hamptons International said: "Transaction levels in the UK are now rising and we expect double digit growth to continue as better economic conditions, improved confidence and mortgage availability allow people to buy and move house more easily again.

But it will take a long time before they return to levels we became accustomed to five years ago. Households are still stretched and as prices increase, affordability will bite too."

Anyone interested in being able to modernise a home to their taste might be interested in this five bedroom detached house in Langley Avenue, Surbiton.

It has more than 4,000 sq ft of space with five large bedrooms, two bathrooms, kitchen/breakfast room, larder, utility, dining room, reception room, two studies, a cloakroom, shower room, garden room, balcony, garden, garage and off-street parking.

It is on the market through Hamptons International priced £1,350,000. For more information call 020 8546 9944 or visit www.hamptons.co.uk

Insight Marketing Executive

Central London, EC4 - £competitive

Newsquest Media Sales represents the national advertising interests of Newsquest Media Group, one of the largest regional media groups in the UK. We deal with media agencies in order to convince them, and the national brands they represent, of the power of local media brands and audiences – across print & online channels.

At NMS, our Insight Marketing team is central to our business. The culture of an insight-led sales approach permeates throughout the organisation. For the successful candidate it means a key position, within an insight-centric organisation.

We'll provide you with, and expect you to master, an impressive suite of insight tools and applications. You'll use these, as well as your own innate sense of commercial insight, to produce compelling sales arguments for our wide-ranging portfolio, working closely with an imaginative, driven, & confident sales team.

The right person for this role possesses a flair for turning data into genuine insights. We'll train you in the NMS insight approach, but you'll need to bring your own sense of commercial savvy, creativity, and confidence.

If you like what you've read so far, send your CV and a few words on why you are the person for this role to Richard Thomas – r.thomas@newsquestmedia.co.uk, by Friday 15th November 2013.

Clampdown on INSURANCE FRAUD

Next summer, most car insurers, will ask customers for their Driving Licence Number (DLN) in a move to cut application fraud.

This is part of a national initiative being developed by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA), the Department for Transport, and the insurance industry.

The DLN, a unique 16-character sequence displayed on a driving licence, will be used to get information from the DVLA on the type of licence a customer holds, how long they have held it, and whether they have any driving convictions.

Simon Douglas, director of AA Insurance, points out that the data will remove the opportunity for customers to declare wrong information about their driving history.

"Insurance fraud, including fraud by being economical with the truth, is a serious issue for the insurance industry and is stealing from honest policyholders," he said.

"Mis-declaring information adds around £15 to the cost of every car insurance policy," said Mr Douglas. "If this initiative streamlines the car insurance application process and improves policy accuracy, then it could reduce insurance industry costs as well as help keep premiums in check."

According to the Association of British Insurers, a startling one-in-five policyholders under-declares the number of motoring convictions they have – some in error, others deliberately in order to pay a lower premium.

In an AA/Populus survey, an overwhelming 92 per cent of respondents supported the move 'if it cuts down fraud', with 72 per cent strongly agreeing.

Similarly, most respondents (89 per cent supporting; 69 per cent strongly agreeing) said they have 'no problem with providing my driving licence number' to enable their insurer to obtain such information.

"This shows that drivers are fed up with a fraudulent minority trying to get cheaper insurance by telling lies at their expense," said Mr Douglas. "As well as saving honest customers an average of £15 on the cost of their car insurance, this initiative will also mean that insurers will need to ask customers fewer questions when they apply for cover.

'DRIVERS ARE FED UP WITH A FRAUDULENT MINORITY TRYING TO GET CHEAPER INSURANCE BY TELLING LIES AT THEIR EXPENSE'

"This will speed up the purchasing process so customers will also be able to access motor insurance much more quickly."

The new system will apply to the whole motor insurance industry including insurers, brokers and price comparison sites.

BOOK IS A TRIUMPH!

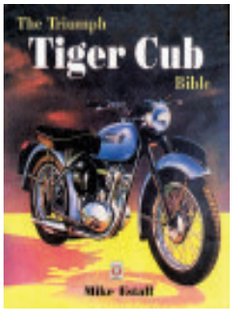

Now, back in print after a long absence, comes the full history of the popular Triumph Cub motorcycle.

The Triumph Tiger Cub Bible is the ultimate reference source book covering every aspect of this motorcycle, including 22 detailed model profiles, delivery details, technical design specifications, military, police and competition bikes, plus the full story behind the model's production run.

Mike Estall, who wrote the book, bought his first Tiger Cub in 1956. Since then he has completed a succession of restoration projects and has researched and collected a vast amount of technical information on these postwar lightweights.

He now runs the Tiger Cub and Terrier Register and a worldwide information service for Cub and Terrier owners. The Triumph Tiger Cub Bible is published by Veloce Books and costs £50. It can be ordered at bookshops or via www.veloce.co.uk

Turley strike not enough for Corinthians

Ex-Kingstonian midfielder Jason Turley struck late on Saturday, but could not prevent a second successive league defeat for boss Brian Adamson's Corinthian Casuals.

Turley's 78th minute effort made it 2-1 at high-flying Peacehaven & Telscombe, before the hosts hit a third four minutes later to kill off hopes of a comeback.

Casuals are currently second from bottom in the Ryman Divison One South – four points from safety – and travel to Hythe Town on Saturday.

England chop for Haycroft

Surbiton ladies captain Sarah Haycroft was the main casualty when England coach Jason Lee named his squad for the World League Finals in Argentina later this month.

Haycroft has had a stunning debut senior season for her country winning a bronze medal at the 2013 Investec Challenge in South Africa, and silvers at both the World League semi-final tournament and the European Championships in Belgium.

But the return to fitness of former Surbiton player Sophie Bray means she has been deemed surplus to requirements for the trip to south America, where clubmates Georgie Twigg, Hollie Webb and Giselle Ansley will hope to make a good impression.

Haycroft instead will team up with the 20 player Great Britain squad preparing for a three-match series against Germany in Mannheim next week and hope she is next in the queue in the event of any injuries.

Surbiton, sixth in the table, host third-placed Bowdon Hightown in the WHL Premier Division on Saturday looking for a win to remain in contention for a play-off place.

They host Conference North side Loughborough Students in the third round of the Women's Cup on Sunday.

Waiting game: Surbiton captain Sarah Haycroft

KCS on top

KCS Old Boys maintained their winning start to the London Division Three South West season with a 32-18 bonus point win over previously unbeaten Ellingham & Ringwood at Motspur Park.

Tries from Harrison Scowsgill, Alex Humphries, Louis Mather and Neil Williams – plus 12 points from full back Gareth Stoppani – ensured a seventh straight win to keep them top of the table.

KCS travel to New Milton & Dstrict on Saturday.

Looking back: Kingstonian striker Andre McCollin, above, could not force this chance home on Saturday and boss Alan Dowson wants his forwards to be more like ex-Ks legend Bobby Traynor, right Deadlinepix SP79038 & SP79032

Ghost of strikers past

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingstonian boss Alan Dowson wants the spirit of legendary striker Bobby Traynor back at the club.

Goals from Tommy Kavanagh and Ryan Moss secured a 2-0 win over Leiston on Saturday as Ks nipped a run of back-to-back 2-0 defeats in the bud.

The result moved Dowson's men up to third in the Ryman Premier League table, but it could have been a more convincing win had Kingstonian made more of the opportunities they created.

And the Kingsmeadow chief wants his current strike partnership of Andre McCollin and Moss, pictured right, to take a leaf out of the Traynor book of goalscoring, if his side is to maintain a promotion push this term.

"We are starting to spread the goals around a bit, but at the end of the day centre forwards are paid to score goals," he said.

"I do not buy this talk of barren spells and stuff like that. It is a striker's job to score goals.

"We need to be more clinical. Bobby Traynor used to score 35 goals a season because he converted the chances we created. We need our strikers to get a bit of Bobby in them.

"We had some unbelievable chances to score in the defeats to Lowestoft and Folkestone and did not take them.

"We have not done an awful lot wrong, it is just we are not taking our chances."

Dowson went some way to solving problem by signing Javlon Campbell on Monday and the former Bolton Wanderers youngster repaid his new boss with a hat-trick in a 5-0 Robert Dyas Cup win over Walton & Hersham.

"Javlon has got good pace and an intelligent game. We needed an extra forward and he caught our eye when playing here against us recently."

Kavanagh and Moss struck in each half at the weekend to give Ks their 10th league win of the season and, despite the cup triumph, Dowson is clear what his priority is this season.

"We'll never draw that many games because we attack every game. That is why we score a lot of goals," he said.

"You might draw two games in a row, but winning one game and losing one still gives you more points and that is why we always play to win.

"We are out of the FA Cup and FA Trophy so that leaves the league for me.

"We want to win every game, but I'll not be remembered for what I do in the Surrey Senior Cup or the Ryman League Cup this season."

Kettle is on for Games

Surbiton keeper David Kettle started his countdown to the Commonwealth Games in Scotland with a hectic weekend for club and country, writes Sean Cotter.

Kettle starred as James Tindall's second half strike ensured a 1-1 draw with Reading at Sugden Road on Saturday, a matter of hours after attending a team briefing and kit-fitting session for Wales in Cardiff.

Tickets to see the Games are almost sold out and while Kettle cannot wait, there is still the small matter of sorting out Surbiton's bid for a top four MHL Premier Division finish.

"The briefing started our preparations for the Commonwealth Games and it was a real buzz being around all the other athletes," he said.

"It's going to be a really exciting eight or nine months as we build up to Glasgow.

"Surbiton have a tough few weeks ahead, but if we keep up the intensity at training and implement the things our coach has been getting us to work on, we'll be in a good place by Christmas."

Going for a gong: Surbiton keeper David Kettle, left, and captain Ben Tibble with the Elmbridge sports club of the year winners and senior sports team of the year runners-up trophies they collected on Friday Tim Reder

Moody quits Ks

Kingstonian full back Marcus Moody's Kingsmeadow exit saw Ks collect three goals this week, writes Stuart Amos.

The defender quit the club on Friday having become frustrated at a lack of regular football in recent weeks, allowing boss Alan Dowson to make a move for striker Javlon Campbell.

Ironically, Moody scored for Ks in a 4-1 win over Thamesmead Town last month, the match in which Campbell – who scored a hat-trick in Monday's league cup win over Walton and Hersham – caught the attention of his new boss.

"Marcus told me he wanted to leave, because he was not playing enough football," said Dowson.

"That opened up a hole in my squad to get Javlon in. He is a bit raw, but is a quick learner and has a bit of pedigree."

Off: Marcus Moody

SPORTS*brief*

SWIMMING: Dylan Conway (U14 100m butterfly), Caitlin Thomson (U14 50m breaststroke), Matthew Kosstaz (U12 50m freestyle), Camilla Loyning (U14 100m breaststroke), Issei Kuzuki (U12 50m butterfly and 50m backstroke) and Cameron Frame (U16 50m butterfly) were Kingston Royals' gold medalists at the Rushmoor Royals sprint meeting on Saturday. The club also collected 15 silver and 11 bronze medals.

RUGBY UNION: Kingston could not build on the euphoria of last week's derby day win over Old Paulines as they crashed 31-10 at Old Tonbridgians in Surrey Divsion One. Old Emanuel – unbeaten in October – crashed back to earth with a 32-26 at Economicals in Surrey Two. Kingston host Old Walcountians on Saturday, while Old Emanuel welcome Streatham & Croydon to New Malden.
